Simply put, Bob Stromberg connects with any audience. Whatever your event, Bob is sure to knock the ball out of park. From his early days performing in thousands of schools and colleges by day and the country's top comedy clubs by night - such as The Comic Strip and The Comedy Store - Bob developed a unique timeless style that engages any audience, in any venue, with joy, laughter and true talent.

Bob has impressed companies of every size and industry from mom-and-pop shops to Fortune 500 companies including General Mills, Cargill, Park Nicollet Health Services and American Family Insurance. He has been well received at Disney, Comcast, Sony and EMI. He has enjoyed helping countless non profit organizations, including The American Cancer Society, Boys and Girls Club, United Way and The Children's Hospital Association. Recently Bob joined forces with top Hollywood stars in the Not For Sale campaign to end human trafficking. In this effort, his work won a coveted Clio, the top award in American advertising.

Bob has a comic arsenal including physical comedy, a non-threatening touch of audience participation and even hand shadows, which the London Metro called, "Stunning!" His megahit theater phenomenon, Triple Espresso (a Highly Caffeinated Comedy) has broken box office records in cities worldwide and sold over two million tickets. The Los Angeles Times has described it as "...a triple jolt of inspired craziness."

He's been a featured performer with Bill Gaither and Ken Davis, a repeat guest on Focus on the Family and stars in Bananas, the Emmy Award winning comedy program broadcast on Fox stations nationwide.

The Chicago Sun Times - "...a mesmerizing physical comedian."

The London Times "...a genuinely funny man."

And that's exactly what he is.
