When Chip Eichelberger speaks to your organization, they won't listen to a lecture—they will participate in an interactive experience that will challenge, enlighten and motivate them!

What distinguishes Chip? Experience, research, call to action and an ROI on your investment!

Formerly Tony Robbins' international point man, Chip presented over 1,250 talks in the US, UK and Australia while with Tony Robbins before collecting his first speaking fee. Over the last 17 years, he has switched on over 854 conventions. He has a magical ability to generate enthusiasm, contagious energy, and results that last well beyond his program. He will make you look good and will be an indispensable part of your successful event!

Chip has learned that extensive research and planning is the key to delivering the best results. He doesn't do canned presentations; he customizes them specifically for your company and your event. First, he researches your company. Then, he interviews you and your key decision-makers so he understands the goals and objectives for his presentation. Travel permitting, he arrives the afternoon before speaking and attends any sessions scheduled for late afternoon and evening to get a flavor for the event. No one else provides this kind of experience!

Chip's presentations are an interactive experience, not a one-way speech! Your people will be engaged and actively participating, not snoozing. Using an interactive customized handout, he works with the audience to look at what they're doing now, find more effective options, and commit to change-change that creates productivity and value for your organization.

Given what is happening in the economy and the constant negative onslaught from the media, the mindset of many people has gone from success to survival. It is time to look in the mirror, put on the hat of personal responsibility, and get better now. Audiences need to hear a message to get them plugged back in and switched on, and this is exactly what Chip delivers.
