Doug Stevenson is the CEO of Story Theater International, a Colorado Springs based speaking, training and consulting firm. He is the creator and author of Doug Stevenson's Story Theater Method.

Doug is a master storyteller and storytelling in business expert. He is a former columnist for the Denver Business Journal, and the author of The How to Write and Deliver a Dynamite Speech System for crafting inspiring motivational speeches. He specializes in coaching business professionals and executives on strategic storytelling, masterful motivational speaking and emotional eloquence.

Stevenson was a professional actor in Chicago and Hollywood for over 16 years. He acted on stage in everything from Snoopy to Shakespeare, and in movies and TV. While in Hollywood, he owned a successful carpentry and remodeling business.

He escaped Hollywood in 1985 and after finding a new home in Colorado Springs, tapped into his entrepreneurial talent again and found success with his real estate brokerage, Sherlock's Homes. He followed that success with a 16-year professional speaking career that has taken him all over the US and to Canada, Australia, England, Ireland, Denmark, Austria, Germany and Singapore.

Doug's clients include: Microsoft, Oracle, Volkswagen, The American Medical Association, Lockheed Martin, The National Education Association, Aetna, The Department of Defense, State Farm Insurance, Century 21, The National Association of Realtors, Rockwell Collins, Caterpillar, Amgen, Hewlett Packard, the FDA, Bayer Healthcare, Junior Achievement, Lions Club International, and many more.

He lives in Colorado Springs with his wife, Deborah Merriman (the VP of Everything of Story Theater International!)
