"Inside EVERY Human Being A Champion Heart Beats"

For almost two decades Jim Jacobus, CSP has shared that message with his audiences around the world. For at least one brief moment each of us has experienced the incredible potential that lies inside. Some experience it more often than others and some for longer periods of time. But every one of us has experienced it and long to make it an every day occurrence.

Jacobus is an international expert on extraordinary performance or what it would take for us individually and collectively, personally or professionally, to experience our immense potential. He is a trusted resource for organizations looking to get maximum results in today's competitive environment. What does it take to be considered an expert in performance? How about the following for starters?

Professionally he has over 20 years of research and application in human behavior and performance. He has 17 years in sales and sales management with America's elite sales organizations where he was named salesperson of the year 9 times and manager of the year 5 times. He has held the designation of being the #1 trainer worldwide with America's largest seminar company.

Personally he played collegiate basketball and baseball, has been on 3 World Championship softball teams, won a national championship in golf and is a 6 times Chrysler National Long Drive regional champion with a personal best in competition of 426 yards. He has held numerous civic and community service board positions and is a two time past president of the National Speakers Association Houston Chapter. He would tell you his proudest accomplishments are as husband to his wife Christie and father to his son Jason!

As a keynoter he is compelling, dynamic and witty and is known for delivering results! You need look no further than the names on his client list to know he is dependable and proven. PricewaterhouseCoopers, Starbucks, Halliburton, Akzo Nobel, IBM, Xerox, Siemens, Southwest Airlines, The National Automobile Dealers Association, The PGA of America, The National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA), Wells Fargo and many, many more regularly rely on Jacobus and Champion Education Resources to create programs to deliver bottom line results and take them to new heights. To a meeting planner he is a breath of fresh air always taking care of every detail and delivering exactly what is agreed upon in a program! To the decision maker he is known for getting bottom line results. To the audience member he is an inspiring and challenging "real world" guy they can believe in and emulate!
