

CAPITOL CITY SPEAKERS BUREAU

We help you thrill your audience!

Ron Galloway

Travels from: Georgia

Fee Range: $7,501 - $10,000

Ron Galloway is a researcher and filmmaker. He studies the disruptive effects of new technologies in healthcare and finance. He has a B.S. of Industrial Management from Georgia Tech. He was a research analyst for Smith Barney (and predecessor companies) from 1985 until 1995, and then founded Method Content, an institutional research firm.

Ron directed the business documentary Why WalMart Works, which was the first film to ever premiere in the U.S. Capitol Building. He produced the documentary Oflag 64: A POW Odyssey for PBS. His film Folly Island won Best Comedy at the New York Independent Film Festival, and was featured at Spoleto.

He is the lone conservative columnist for The Huffington Post. He has been featured on CNN, CNBC, MSNBC, BBC and ABC World News Tonight. Print coverage includes the New York Times, Wall Street Journal and the New Yorker.

He was featured (and made fun of) on Jon Stewart's Daily Show.

Most Requested Programs...

- New Money: The Impact of Technology on Payments
- 12 Disruptive Financial Technologies You Should Know About
- Age Invaders: How Increasing Longevity Will Transform Financial Businesses
- Ambient Intelligence & How Will it Affect Senior Living & Healthcare?
- The Payment Revolution: Apple Pay, Bitcoins & Other Disruptive Payment Innovations
- How Technology Is Disrupting Wealth Management & How Financial Service Companies Can Prosper From It
- The Growth Of Retail Health Clinics & How They Are Disrupting Healthcare
- The Data Driven Patient: How EHRs, Genomics & A.I. Will Change Healthcare
- Spock vs. Kirk: The Leadership Styles Of Completely Different People
- The Board Of The Future: How New Technologies Are Improving Governance