Scott Bloom

Travels from: California

Fee Range: $10,001 - $15,000

A professional comedian who has hosted hundreds of corporate events headlined at as many of the nation's top comedy clubs, Scott Bloom can custom tailor his unique brand of showmanship to meet your needs. In addition to hosting over 300 corporate events for Fortune 500 companies, like AT&T, Merck and American Express, he has also had a successful career in television. Most recently, Scott was the host of his own weekly VH1 series. This past year he did some hosting duties for Game Show Network and hosted a national simulcast of the Grammy Awards from the Palace Theater in Los Angeles for Discover Card.

He has also appeared on Comedy Central's Premium Blend, A&E's Caroline's Comedy Hour, Evening at the Improv and Comedy on the Road. Scott is a national headliner on the stand-up comedy circuit and has performed in Las Vegas at both Harrah's and the MGM Grand casinos. Presently, he is developing several game shows for Game Show Network and syndication.

Whether opening the general session, introducing executives, entertaining between official presentations or crafting segues that underscore your conference objectives, Scott is a valuable asset at any important gathering. His presence adds the magical glue that holds a meeting together, giving it continuity, consistency and charismatic appeal. His intelligence and vibrancy creates a dynamic and instant rapport with the audience. He'll get them all going and going strong with program warm-ups and participation games to kick off sessions and move them into breaks.

His charm and gracious introductions provide smooth transitions that add a veneer of distinction to all the speakers. Whether through personal introductions or prerecorded pieces, he puts them at ease ... and into the limelight. Pair that with his sharp sense of humor and ability to improv, and he can take moments of important material and make them seriously funny and always memorable.

He is the penultimate in the master of ceremonies genre. The Billy Crystal of corporate meetings. So the next time you're looking to engage, educate, and entertain ... introduce Scott Bloom, former host of VH1. Rest assured, you'll be introducing the best new component to staging successful meetings.
